SENATE PRESIDENT JUAN Ponce Enrile is not about to heed calls from certain senators to resign, saying they did not install him in power.

"Sen. Manuel Villar and his group did not elect me to the presidency. I was elected by a group of senators. Only they can take me out if they want," Enrile told the Inquirer yesterday.

It was reacting to calls by senators allied with Villar—Minority Leader Aquilino Pimentel Jr. and Alan Peter Cayetano—for him to resign to preserve the line of succession to the presidency in case of a failure of elections in May.

Villar and his allies had suggested that a senator not running for reelection head the chamber to be able to serve as acting president should the elections fail.

CORY STATUE Sculptor Eduardo Castillo applies the finishing touches to his masterpiece, a statue of Corason Aquino, which will be unveiled today in Manila during the 77th birth anniversary of the late President.

AN ANNOUNCEMENT TO THE MUCH-LOVED LATE President Corason Aquino will be unveiled in Manila today, her 77th birth anniversary.

It is the first memorial shrine honoring Aquino, or simply Cory to the Filipino people, according to its sculptor Eduardo Castillo.

Castillo made the country's first statue of Aquino's husband, Sen. Benigno "Ninoy" Aquino II, in Concepcion, Ilocos, as well as another Ninoy statue at the People Power monument on EDSA.

The newly unveiled 15-foot bronze statue of Cory stands beside a statue of Ninoy (not by Castillo) on Roxas Boulevard and Padre Burgos Drive across from the historic Manila Hotel.

It shows the country's first woman president, flanking the "Salud" (Right) sign with her right hand and holding up the 1987 Constitution with the other.

THE CATHOLIC BISHOPS' Conference of the Philippines (CBCP) last night voiced concern over preparations for the first nationwide computerized balloting just hours after the elections commission dismissed "apocalyptic predictions" of a failure of elections.

"Many serious questions about the reliability and integrity of the equipment and the personnel involved have not been satisfactorily answered," said a pastoral statement issued by Bishop Norberto Odionan, the CBCP president, during the prelates' annual general assembly at the weekend. He said an alternative system should be

PHILIPPINE PRELATES last night issued a pastoral statement urging Filipinos to follow their conscience—not the results of presidential surveys—when they vote in May.

"Do not be swayed by survey results or political advertisements. Follow the dictates of your conscience after a prayerful and collective period of discernment," said the statement by the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines (CBCP). "Authenticity is not an all-or-none exercise for voting," said the statement, titled A Call for Vigilant Conscience.

the CBC's president, in behalf of the collegial body.

The CBC's released the statement during its 198th general assembly at the Plaza 22 Centre in Montreal on October 19. The president was scheduled to also attend the National National Congress of Chicago today.

"We appeal directly to you, as well as our members and women, as well as our members of our Radio-Canada and Commission and religious law organizations to exercise your right to be properly, i.e., following the criteria indicated several times in our presented letters," the CBC said.

"Sustained elections will not give us good public officials, otherwise the lead in this country will have to depend on the most qualified," said Montréal Bishop, Bishop B.
Maurice Villier and Bishop B.

Joseph Fortin as the assistant leader in the election process by pulling from Social Initiative Stations and Pulse-Action and other energy groups.

supports the Radio-Canada Health, Bill which is pending in Congress and is being supported by the Church.

Antitrust policies

On Dec. 27, the last day of the Holy Family, the CBC's Episcopal Commission on Family and Life is held in the Cathedral of St. John and St. John in the 20th century.

The document said a "second war" will be necessary to provide for the children who appear and antitrust

Competence, integrity

In its second resolution on the topic, the bishops stated on Jan. 21, 1968, the CBC's role in the public sector in choosing the right competence, competence, integrity, personal integrity and a commitment to the common good.

"The candidates should not only be competent, the church also be confident, God loving and moral," it said.

"And finally, bishops find of all an absolute commitment to uphold the human rights and freedom of others, and history in the handling of public affairs, and also in the moral, social and, and finally, another in every person and family life," it added.

In its statement on this year's election, the CBC's asked the candidates to run on honour and virtue considered and not to compromise the principles of the people.

"We ask the candidates, already at this point, to start serving the nation by being loud and clear in refusing the proprietorship of the state, and to be sincere," the bishops continued.

"They should not compromise to manipulate the perception of the people but to help them to make good choices and to be clear, the bishops said, the

Seniors to be exempt from VAT soon

By Christine G. Smith

VERY SOON, SE- nior citizens will no longer have to pay the 12 percent registered value-added tax (VAT) when they purchase goods and services. The Senate is set to pass the "Expanded Senior Citizens Act" which exempts them from the payment of VAT from the VME.

Most consumers associated the Senate and House versions of the act but not according to Sen. Florentino, chair of the Senate committee on social justice and the bill's principal author.

Chair the measure is entitled, it will be sent to President Municipal Affairs for the signature and it will become law.

The VAT exemption will apply to the following:

Individuals and associated medical supplies and equipment, prosthetic devices, diagnostic and laboratory fees, public transportation fares including for air and sea travel, hotel and restaurant charges, music and other places of amusement, fees, and funeral and burial services.

These senior citizens would also be granted a monthly stipend of P200 and accession of P2,000 to their part of his elderly day.

They may also enjoy a 5 percent discount on water and electric bills provided the utility are not used to their utility and consumption is below 100 kilowatt hours for electricity and 30 cubic meters for water respectively, per month.

DENR seeks curb on Mt. Pulag treks

BOBOY, BANGUIT—NORTHERN PHILIPPINE TRAILERS ADVISORY.

The Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) wants this message heard by all climbers in Mt. Pulag following the conditions that caused the Dec. 7 crash organized by Kabayan town tourism officials.

More than 200 hikers joined the "Summit to Summit" climb but the event got the level of DENR officials after they felt they were bypassed by the organizers who allegedly skipped the protocols of climbing.

But local officials quickly denied the charge.

Emorika Mlao, Mt. Pulag park superintendent, said the protocols in climbing involving visitors on the route in climbing to the country's second highest peak (2,924 meters above sea level).

The information was necessary for the climbers' safety and the park's environmental protection, he said.

"We are should climb Mt. Pulag without knowing, for instance, what a permit is, garbage not," he said.

Some 1,000 climbers visit the mountain every year.

Mlao said his office receives more than 20 organized treks a year. "We are should be equipped from knowing the park rules, whether or not they are amateur or professional climbers, or whether or not they are well-informed or brought in by climb organizers," he said.

The Kabayan Village Tourism Agency said the DENR's charge was wrong.

"We did not bypass the DENR and ignore park rules. Since there were 200 climbers and it would take time for them to be led by the DENR, we decided that our own tourism officials conduct the orientation," he said.

Agustin said local officials decided to do the briefing since it was getting late and the trek might not be able to complete its route in the top and its scheduled hike trips to the town's tourist-oriented areas.

Climbers are asked to register for information either at the DENR park superintendent's office at Baguio town or at the Baguio Ranger Station at Baguio village in Baguio.

Mlao said the park offers all in first and foremost a personal area which the DENR has jurisdiction.

But Agustin said the DENR could not claim exclusive jurisdiction over parts of Mt. Pulag outside persons of Kabayan.

"In fact, we have plans of making the park a municipal park so that it would become part of our local development plan," he said.

Under park rules, there should be no more than 200 participants in an organized climb. Each group is allowed a maximum of 15 to 20 members.

The DENR has ruled out deducting a membership on advance hikes in the park.

Mlao said though that rules must be followed, but organizers must at every coordinate with the park superintendent's office, she said.

An unattended number of climbers could cause serious trail and pose problems for sanitation, waste management and overcrowding on the way to the top, she said.

But Agustin and treks organized by the local tourism officials also adhere to the same rules. Baguio Tourism, Inquirer-Northern Luzon

FESTIVAL RULES

It's that time of the year again for the annual Baguio Flower Festival. But this is 1997 climbing, organizers are drafting new rules to stop participants from their first climb festival parade in February.

131 cops axed for not attending court hearings

By Chito A. Aragon

Agustine Aragon

CEBU CITY—131 POLICE PERSONNEL were dismissed and 151 others were criminally charged or detained in 2009 for failing to attend court hearings of drug cases that had led to the dismissal of the cases.

The information was contained in a recent report of the Department of Justice (DOJ) Anti-Ragland Drug Special Operations Task Force based on data furnished by the Philippine National Police (PNP).

DOJ superintendent Paul J. Chansins Chansins said the PNP should be commended for taking these measures against policemen whose names have led to the dismissal of drug-related cases.

The DOJ report showed that by the end of 2009, the Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency (PDEA) forwarded to the PNP 519 illegal drug cases, involving 475 police personnel as witnesses. But were dismissed due to the failure of the police witness to attend court hearings.

In and that after these cases were dismissed, 121 policemen were found liable for the failed court cases and were ordered to undergo income review, while 121 policemen were issued probation orders in connection with the failure of the police witness to attend court hearings.

Chansins said the PNP also reported that 112 PNP personnel were criminally charged in court for failure to attend court proceedings of illegal drug cases.

Warning
Chansins said the filing of the criminal complaint was based on Section 91 of the Public Law No. 1010, which provides that "any member of law enforcement agencies or any other government official and officers who, after due notice, fails or refuses to attend court proceedings in person as a witness for the prosecution in any proceedings, involving violations of the law, without any valid reason, shall be punished with imprisonment of not less than twelve (12) years and one (1) day to twenty (20) years and a fine of not less than Five hundred thousand pesos (P500,000.00), in addition to the administrative liability he may be held up to by his superior and or appropriate body."

The filing of cases against these police officers would serve as a warning to police witnesses to be diligent and committed in handling their drug cases, Chansins said in a statement last week.

The data, dismissal of service and filing of cases against these police officers suggest that the government is serious in its anti-drug campaign, he added.

JPE's fate depends on new Senate majority

tempt to submit to a vote the report that he prepared on the committee.

The report, which found that Villar was behind the alleged double-baiting of the C-5 decision, said to his properties in Pasig and Las Alas to be used there, respectively at least 12 votes to be submitted.

The Senate has week-long votes to take up the report, which was signed by 12 members, due in lack of quorum and lack of time.

On Tuesday, 13 senators, including Villar, failed to show up. Villar was scheduled to present the report.

The Senate president said the majority would be "enough to prevent the submission of the committee report." He said supporters after the report, who said Villar and his allies "don't want to be public to know what is contained in the report."

Villar, who is positive following his Senate colleagues and refusing to continue hearings, told the newspaper in an all-out bid. He wanted the absent senators to be in attendance for him.

He won't enough

Seeing by itself, Villar attacked Villar. "Don't be a coward," he told reporters. "If we want to be president, he should be more enough. If he wants that, I will tell the nation not to vote for him because he is a coward."

On Wednesday evening, Villar was found frustrated after the Senate adjourned for lack of quorum. The accused Villar of double-baiting in the C-5 report said he is in control of the Senate leadership in time for the convening of votes in the May elections to which Villar is running for president under the Nacionalista Party.

Although Villar doubted whether Villar had the numbers to meet him, he claimed he will expect the support of 13 senators. A simple majority is needed to finish a new Senate president in the 25-member chamber to submit his report.

How many more prosecution Villar can take from Villar's camp before he goes home and stops at Villar to demolish him, especially in a matter being watched with keen interest.

Rapidly increasing is whether Villar can muster the numbers to convene Villar.

Plot to arrest Villar

Villar has accused the Villar camp of launching a plot to arrest him, to "allow the time comes for the convening of votes for president and vice president, it means the most serious thing that the national council (containing Villar) is not controlled by Villar."

Villar and the Villar camp wanted to "make Villar Senate president in case there is a failure of elections, or he would be the Senate."

He charged that the Villar plot intended to replace him as Senate president with Sen. Eduardo Nogra, who has declared himself support for Villar's presidential candidacy. This suggests the likelihood and volatility of alliances in the Senate over the C-5 issue.

Villar has denied the accusations. With the accusations, Villar has said the fact of the Senate investigation from the C-5 case to the Villar to arrest him just now would be before Congress adjourns.

Villar, who is seeking reelection in the upcoming elections, wanted that Villar's allies succeed in blocking deliberations on the committee report, he would bring up the case with the people during the campaign season.

Bluff

Villar and Villar have little time as space to avoid a head-on collision. They are both on the edge of calling each other bluff.

Villar asked to submit a challenge against Villar's Senate leadership in November when a group of senators, not the same group that signed Villar's report, filed a resolution demanding Sen. Amato Madrigal's complaint of unethical position against Villar.

The resolution, No. 1472, held that the charges were "unsubstantiated." Charging Villar of the charges and resulting to deny the complaint, the resolution purports to stand on behalf of the Senate. It was passed after the conclusion of the inquiry into the complaint by the committee of the whole, which assumed jurisdiction over the complaint.

Offended

The committee started the investigation in June 2007.

Offended by the resolution, Villar denied it as a quo warranto by a group that accepted not only the majority but also the jurisdiction of the committee of the whole, and presented its official report.

One month before the Senate today, Villar said to resist his own bid and leadership, both down to how much change the requesting of the debate on the C-5 matter of interest would suffer on the electoral chances of Villar's presidential bid.

All times debate is likely to begin a heavy fall-out on Villar in a critical time when he is struggling to win the lead in support of Sen. Benigno "Nepom" Aquino III, the Liberal Party standard-bearer who has been the front runner since September.

Setback

The release of the Villar committee report was a setback for Villar's camp as well. The report has triggered a resurgence of rumors discrediting the report and those who are shifting Villar's move to convene Villar.

Villar is not expected to hold his position if he abandons with Villar. The fact and prestige are on the line. Whether or not Villar can save the tide in his camp will be decided by the outcome of his face-off with Villar. The key to his bid for Villar lies in the new majority in the Senate.

Enrile rejects quit calls

dent, Vice President and Speaker and on June 20, only the Senate President and the Chief Justice could take the vote of government as required by the Constitution of Philippine Republic.

The problem cropped up because the term of Enrile, who was elected in 2004, would end in June.

In response to the matter, Chief Justice Reynato Puno is set to retire on May 31 and a new chief of President Macapagal-Arroyo could pick a replacement because of a law on mid-night appointments.

In a phone interview, Enrile, who was about to launch a plan for himself after standing in July in Manila, asked Villar why he was "hesitant to remove me from the Senate presidency because of his claim of a possible failure of elections."

The Senate president wondered why Villar was accepting a failure of the May 30 elections.

"I don't know anything we don't know," asked Enrile, who accused Villar of insinuating an attempt to arrest him from the Senate leadership to allegedly stop the situation from making up a committee report on the C-5 mail papers that was unfavorable to Villar.

In addition, Villar wanted to ally to be better positioned in case he was coming of the results of the presidential election, Enrile said.

"In case of a failure of elections, he (Villar) should not say... if he wants anything from the Commission... the failure of elections can only be determined after May 31," he said.

Enough time

Enrile said that if that happened, there was "enough time to deal" with the new between May 11 and June 30, the day President Macapagal-Arroyo finishes power to the new President.

"Because Villar and his people cannot decide on the issue alone. It should be decided by all leaders of the country," he added.

Enrile called Villar a "strongman" who was in a hurry to gain power and gain advantages.

Senate President Puno, who resigned in 2004, and later on by Sen. Richard Gordon and Sen. Giovanni "Dinky" Magalad called Villar "baiting" saying that the resignation could be Villar's camp were aimed at preventing the committee report against Villar from coming out.

"I don't think Sen. Puno should have made a resignation. What he should do is resign. The Senate will still meet after the May 30 elections and tackle the matter should the first attempt to resign the polls end up a failure," he said.

Absent

Madrigal and calls for Villar to "quit his job" (the absent and Enrile).

"The more, Villar wants to stop the Senate report concerning him for his role in the C-5 case which may lead to his resignation," Madrigal said in a text message.

Madrigal, an independent presidential candidate, said he should be Villar for the Nacionalista Party standard-bearer, not Villar, who should quit.

"If he has any shred of distinction left, Villar should resign for helping Aquino in the Sen. Puno's emergency because of his involvement in the C-5 corruption scandal," he said. Villar has denied any wrongdoing in the C-5 papers.

He claimed the constitutional process against an "acting as dictator" cover for what seems to be Villar's intention to cheat and manipulate the upcoming of the (May) election results.

HIS DEATH STARTED A REVOLUTION.

HER LIFE RESTORED DEMOCRACY.

THE MAN

Ninoy Aquino's shining political career began at 22 years old as the youngest member in Congress. He gained popularity when he stood up against Martial Law and was imprisoned. His charisma stirred the nation from its apathy. His extra-signalled the end of democracy, his return sparked its return. Two million people mourned his death, and even more joined in the fight for his dreams for the nation.

THE WOMAN

Cory Aquino's life changed dramatically in the wake of her husband's death. From her life as the wife of a controversial politician, to becoming one herself, Cory became known as the "Mother of Democracy" as she stood at the helm of People Power. And after the arduous task of rebuilding a nation, her publication did not end with her term. Even after she returned to her private life, she continued to be the model citizen selflessly putting the nation above herself.

THEIR LEGACY

locked in EDSS, protesting only their hands formed in an L sign as their weapons against guns. Bare hands pushed against the cold armored tanks of oppression, human chains were their only links to democracy. All this was inspired by a simple poster for a free nation.

A true hero is hard to come across, but when you meet one you will know instantly. A true hero can teach you without being in the same room. A true hero's words inspire heroic action. A true hero lives on even after death.

Their gift to us was a renewed national spirit. This is their legacy to the Filipino people.

THEIR INSPIRATION

But what inspired those that served as the future of our nation? my|phone. But what gave them the strength to lead? What helped them go so far after being stripped in prison, forced to suffer indignities and eventual exile from the land they loved?

For Ninoy, it was his desire to be a citizen and his strong faith that helped her through her trials.

THEIR PHONE: The Filipino is worth dying for, but they are also worth commemorating.

Filipino mobile phone brand, my|phone collaborated with the Ninoy & Cory Aquino Foundation (NSAF) to create a phone that embodies the spirit and values of our nation. The my|phone my|heroes series are specially designed for the NSAF with a percentage of the proceeds going to the foundation's charitable causes and events.

Each my|phone my|heroes phone is preloaded with Ninoy and Cory content such as Ninoy and Cory Audio Trivia and Biographies. Experience and feel Cory's spirituality which helped the Aquino family through the trials of their lives with her personal prayers. Be inspired by the man behind the pulpit as you read Ninoy's letters and poems. Relive the spirit of national pride as you listen to their famous speeches, inspirational messages, and testimonials.

Aside from exclusive Aquino content, the phone is also preloaded with two audio prayers that you can pray along with like the Holy Rosary, Luminous, Glorious, Sorrowful & Joyful Mysteries automatically arranged by day. Stations of the Cross, your favorite Manos and the largest mobile phone collection of Audio Prayers for every daily station. It even has an eBook collection including the Catholic Bible and a complete Catholic Dictionary guide.

Lopez firm to bid for gov't power assets

Targets: Ilijan, Angat, BacMan facilities

By Boris C. Chonday

AFTER GETTING OVER ITS debt woes with the sale of a substantial stake Manila Electric Co., the Lopez group is bracing to expand its power-generation business with the potential acquisition of state-owned assets that are up for grabs this year.

Through First Gen Corp., the company is keen on submitting the bidding for the private assets of the 20th-century (2000) target hydroelectric power plant complex in Ilijan, Bulacan, the contract to manage the 1,200-MW Ilijan power plant and the 1,200-MW Ilijan power plant (BacMan) power plant, company executive vice president and chief financial officer Francis Elio Pano will report.

Asked whether the group was also interested in the privatization of a 50 percent stake in government-owned and operated (GO) Electric Corp., Pano said: "We haven't made up our mind. It's not really a priority but we'll look at it."

"Our priority is really on the generation side," Pano said, citing the prospective bid for Angat, Ilijan and BacMan.

Based on the government's timetable, the Angat power plant and the Ilijan Independent power producer (IPP) contract, are both slated for privatization by April while the contract to manage the Ilijan power facilities, near Ilijan, Bulacan remains targeted to bid out within the year.

Pano said the company was not planning any new bond issues for the rest of the year. "There's nothing definite. We just finished all of our refinancing last year and now it's capital raising," Pano said, adding that a big cash-for-a-share deal is not in the cards.

He said First Gen could enter a P1-billion debt-for-equity swap while part of its revenue

Labor unrest threatens North Harbor takeover

By Paolo C. Monzon

WORKERS V PANGLOSS'S ENTRY INTO the port operations business may have been hailed by some industry players, but labor unions are threatening to sue the group's efforts to modernize Manila North Harbor—the country's largest but most troubled port.

The Philippine Ports Authority (PPA) on Jan. 23 suspended its search for a bidder to take over the port's operations to Manila North Harbor (MNH) partly to ease the issue of 1,000 jobs that would be lost if the private consortium bid to take over.

PPA officials said the new project of 200,000 sq ft of space between Baguio Avenue (BAGU) and Cebu Avenue (CEBU) would be 100 percent owned by Pangloss Inc. (Pangloss), a subsidiary of the PPA, which is currently owned by the PPA and the PPA's private sector partners.

PPA General Manager Oscar Sevilla said the 20-day suspension was meant to ensure that the most suitable port privatization deal is the country's largest port authority.

Subic sees entry of more Taiwanese investors

Subic Bay is expected to see more Taiwanese investors in the coming years, according to the Subic Bay Freeport Authority.

RACER-CHINA trade agreements to bring more firms to free port

By David L. ...

Subic Bay Freeport Authority (SBFA) officials say that the recent trade agreements between the Philippines and China are expected to bring more Taiwanese investors to the free port. The SBFA is currently in the process of negotiating with various international firms to establish a presence in the area.

The SBFA is a government-owned entity that manages the Subic Bay Freeport. It is one of the largest and most developed free ports in the Philippines. The port has a long history of trade and commerce, and it is expected to continue to grow in the coming years.

BSP poised to keep key rate steady

By David L. ...

The Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) is expected to keep its key policy rate steady at 7.5 percent in the coming months. The central bank has been maintaining this rate since it was lowered from 8 percent in early 2009. The BSP is closely monitoring the economic situation and is prepared to adjust the rate if necessary.

The BSP's decision to keep the rate steady is based on the current economic conditions. The central bank is aiming to maintain price stability and support the growth of the economy. It is also taking into account the global economic situation and the need to attract foreign investment.

The BSP is also working to improve the financial system and to enhance the stability of the peso. It is implementing various measures to strengthen the banking sector and to ensure the integrity of the financial system.

ODO to drill more wells

By David L. ...

The Oil Drilling Operations (ODO) are planning to drill more wells in the coming months. The ODO is a government-owned entity that manages the oil and gas resources of the Philippines. It is currently in the process of evaluating various drilling sites and is expected to start drilling soon.

The ODO's decision to drill more wells is based on the need to increase the country's oil and gas production. The government is aiming to reduce its dependence on foreign oil and to ensure a stable energy supply for the future. It is also taking into account the environmental impact of drilling and is implementing measures to minimize it.

The ODO is also working to improve the efficiency of its operations and to enhance the safety of its drilling activities. It is investing in new technology and training its personnel to ensure the highest standards of performance and safety.

MIA counts on double-digit passenger growth in 2010

By David L. ...

The Manila International Airport Authority (MIAA) is counting on double-digit passenger growth in 2010. The MIAA is a government-owned entity that manages the Manila International Airport. It is currently in the process of implementing various measures to improve the airport's facilities and services, and it is expected to see a significant increase in passenger traffic.

The MIAA's decision to count on double-digit passenger growth is based on the increasing demand for air travel in the Philippines. The government is aiming to attract more tourists and to support the growth of the economy. It is also taking into account the global economic situation and the need to improve the country's infrastructure.

The MIAA is also working to improve the efficiency of its operations and to enhance the safety of its flights. It is investing in new technology and training its personnel to ensure the highest standards of performance and safety.

LEAVING THE PERIPHERAL PRINCIPAL and other positions towards Mindanao, the second largest island group in the Philippines has assumed a vital focus in the country's economic development.

The region remains for a decade of the country's population and a fifth of the country's total domestic output, largely due to Mindanao's agriculture, fisheries and forestry sector, which is responsible for 15 percent of the country's total output from the sector.

But experts believe that the island is just scratching the surface and has the potential to produce far more, considering that it is blessed with fertile soil and is spared from typhoons that plague the rest of the country.

It has economic potential is expected to be unlocked with the much-anticipated passage of the bill seeking to create the Mindanao Development Authority.

The bill was approved last week by the bicameral committee of Congress, raising hopes that the bill will be enacted before Congress adjourns in February.

Trade Undersecretary Nigilayon, who also chairs the Mindanao Economic Development Council (MEDC), the body that will be replaced by MEDA, said the law is an historic step because the MEDA law should be passed and how important it is to the Philippines to live up to its full potential.

Questions: What will the Mindanao Development Authority do once it is established?

Legislation: The proposed Mindanao Development Authority will provide the strategic direction for Mindanao. It will, among others, formulate an integrated development framework for Mindanao, policies, programs, and implement them; plan, promote and/or Mindanao-wide development programs and projects; and act as the Philippine Coordinating Office for the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) in Mindanao.

How does the Authority will also act as an official member of the board of the National Economic and Development Authority, thus giving Mindanao a strategic representation in the national planning process.

Q: What are the primary reasons why it should be passed?

Legislation: Mindanao has to catch up with nationwide national development, having been a victim of development disparity and economic inequality. The island also needs an agency that integrates a Mindanao-wide agenda and effectively addresses development agenda in national government policies.

There is also a dire need for an agency that looks beyond regional concerns, nurtures and promotes peace and development efforts as a Mindanao-wide perspective and that will be able to address and respond to local, political and social developments.

To do all these would require a genuine island-wide mechanism with security

ARTISAN GALLERY 4 ATTITUDE AND THE Institute of Contemporary Arts (ICA) Singapore are presenting "9 Dead in Play" featuring one leading young artist in South-east Asia—Ronald Ventura of Singapore and several members of the Philippines.

In the exhibit that opens on Feb. 5 at the ICA Gallery (1, Orchard Road, Singapore), he and Ventura express their thoughts on "play and playthings," posing their artwork as a response to the culture, creating a dialogue while using their own respective language.

They tackle issues of humanity and our paintings, sculptures, videos and installations express social challenges in the human spirit, but even as they touch the core with reality and a hint of cynicism, they make a serious chord on social questions about modern civilization.

"ENGINE—The Daring Vision in the Park," by Brandon Scott French

THE AUSTRALIAN EMBASSY IN HONG KONG is well served a unique exhibition showcasing the strength and dynamism of Australia's creative glass industry through the collection of Australian Fine Art (26).

The exhibit, "White Hot: Contemporary Australian Glass," highlights artworks of eight internationally renowned Australian glass artists Nadine Despres, Shirley Farnham, Sandra Fennay, Jessica Langford, Ian Wilson, Brandon Scott French, David Sweeney and Justin Vilevsky.

The artists explore themes of narrative, symbolism, and challenge, posing varied notions about what glass can be. Their works demonstrate that glass is a sophisticated, universal substance that crosses media classifications.

In recent years, contemporary Australian glass artists have received unprecedented international acclaim. "White Hot" is the first dedicated Australian glass exhibition to have toured Asia, having been presented in Bangkok, Manila and Kuala Lumpur.

The Curator's Talk by creative director of Canberra Glassworks Glass Bellamy and participating artist Jessica Langford is scheduled on Jan. 27, 2 p.m., at the Apple Museum. The activity is free with museum admission. For reservations, call Apple (Central of the Education Department) at 757-7117 to 15 for 26.

The exhibition is one of the highlights of Canberra Australia 2010, a festival organized by the Australian Embassy to mark Australia Day. It will run Jan. 26-July 26 at 6-8, Apple Museum.

White Hot is presented by Australia in partnership with leading arts organizations Glass 807 and Canberra Glassworks.

Apple Museum is located at the corner of Malacca Avenue and De la Rosa Street, Greenway Park, Midland City. For details on the exhibition, call Ed Bishop of the Australian Embassy (Apple Apple), 757-8772, or Apple Museum at 757-7117 to 15 for 26, or visit www.applemuseum.com, apple.museum.com.

FROM BOOK TO FILM

Sandra Bullock is heartfelt in 'The Blind Side'

By Jordan Mar S. de Leon Contributor

ADAPTED FROM MICHAEL LEVIN's 2006 best-selling book "The Blind Side: Evolution of a Team," the film "The Blind Side" tells the extraordinary story of an impoverished young boy who is adopted and subsequently brought up by a wealthy couple to become a professional one in the National Football League, although initially perceived as a rag-doll-like star, the film effectively portrays how much a family can do to help a young man, whose the common theme and element found in most inspirational stories.

Michael Oher (Quinton Aaron), a homeless African-American young man who comes from a broken home, is adopted by Leigh Anne (Sandra Bullock) and Sean (Tim McGraw), a wealthy white family who helps him develop his true potential and chances Oher's presence in the football team, to several self-realizations by the "Oher" family in "chasing" their two children, Collins (Lilly Collins) and Sean "SP" (Lil' Uzi Vert).

At the same time, the film, while being in his true environment as a student and football player, faces an entirely different set of challenges to overcome. With the help of his new-found family and coaches, he overcomes his struggles in the classroom in his life and become a professional athlete in the end.

Gender, nontraditional

In many instances in the film, you may find the story of an African-American boy being taken in and raised by a wealthy white family may seem too good to be true. But it is a true story—and the fact that character relationships in the movie center around a poor yet talented young man—that makes the film more original than the book. One of the factors that make the film special is that Oher, played by Quinton Aaron, is astoundingly likable. Here's something you and I cannot disagree on: even with his name in the film, this is his book. His relationship with his new family and his previous environment in his new environment are believable.

Bullock as Leigh Anne, in the other hand, is able to effectively show us a side in which the actress an amazing balance between a busy law practice and a loving and compassionate mother in a complete stranger—all capped with a surprising accent. But in the film, Leigh Anne's relationship with Oher goes beyond the period of a white person raising a black man. Some parenting and dialog, which viewers may also perceive.

There chemistry and bond between such is an authentic mother-and-child relationship which you can easily identify with. What's truly unique about this film is that it has no cliché or traditional scenes usually found in inspirational and sports-related stories. There is no one within in the story as the main conflict is Oher's struggle to overcome his weaknesses, and eventually succeed in life.

While loaded with drama in its first half, the film is genuinely funny too.

For instance, the sudden one-upping game of "SP" are welcome humor in between Leigh Anne's emotional self-reflection. As a result, you do not need to be completely drained by its heavy drama.

Overall, "The Blind Side" is truly a film that strategically plays on your emotions and genuinely makes you feel good as the credits roll.

The Blind Side opens Jan. 27 in movie theaters nationwide.

Francisco Coching, the true National Artist for 'komiks' art

IN THE 1950s, FRANCISCO V. COCHING was a household name in the Philippines because his komiks were staple reading fare for the nation.

Known as a "massive family-making machine," Coching dominated the Philippine komiks scene in the 1950s, with notable works such as "Dinagyang," "Barbarians," "Vigilante," "Makuluha," "Yugoslavians," "The Last Days of Pompeii," "Bugsy," and many more.

Writing, plotting, taking, coloring, inking...Coching did it all, producing over 100 komiks novels, all but 10 adapted to the big screen.

Because of his contribution to Philippine visual culture, Coching is hailed as the Philippines' greatest komiks illustrator in general consensus. His skill and artistry were recognized by the General OCF Panel in 2008. He was also nominated twice for National Artist for the Visual Arts.

To enter the interest in Coching and the last komiks tradition of the Philippines, Vital Illustration Inc. (VIL) introduces a new addition to its Art Series of legends: "The Life and Art of Francisco Coching."

Edited by art historian Percy Flores, the book discusses the nation's first popular komiks illustration, whose work Flores describes as "innovative" and "progressive."

"Coching defined the Philippine visual culture in the 50s and set the benchmark for his contemporaries in what we now know as the Golden Age of Komiks in the Philippines," Flores writes.

Coching's early introduction to the art came with regular trips to Lungsod Publications with his father, Gregorio Coching, who was a popular newspaper vendor in his day.

Then, Coching had the chance to watch prominent illustrators at work, including Francisco Reyes, the creator of "Noli" and one of the greatest influences on Coching.

At 15 years old, Coching created "Ming Magallon," a cartoon that was published in "Makuluha." A year later, he created "Makuluha" for "Bugsy" Magazine, which was popular until it was interrupted by the outbreak of World War II.

After working in World War II, Coching returned to his craft, now by his "Bugsy" inspired by both "Noli" and the classic Tarzan. The work ran in Lungsod Publications for 13 years and was adapted to film starring Fernando Poe Jr.

In the peak of his career, Coching was writing and drawing three comic serials simultaneously (eventually changing to his wife to do the lettering for him) until he retired in 1963.

Flores emphasizes that Coching stands out from other komiks artists because he was a story writer and illustrator at the same time.

"Coching had a sense of the epic...he would create about people in fantasy, or very ordinary yet profound situations, depicting the Filipino identity as vibrant and heroic."

His story lines were densely layered, and whether they carried action, suspense, mystery, or political dimensions, they had an emotional core that went beyond the typical comic.

Aside from the stories that drew a loyal following for more 30 years, Coching's illustrations were also exceptional.

"I was not his model," says Flores. "His lines depicted dynamism, movement, and sound, but figures danced and convulsed. He was not content with simple gestures and his figures were always posed in dramatic, elaborate actions."

Humble
Coching's daughter Lani remembers her father as a humble man who had a passion for excellence.

"If he was alive, he would not have believed there was a book in his house, or even that he had been mentioned more in books, at home," she notes. "He never claimed to be the best in art. In his, perfection had its own taste, his own style."

Lani recalls her father's modest personality, content with his family.

"He never did anything halfhearted. Whether in his art or other aspects of his life, he was forward on everything. To him, anything that carried his name and his signature had to be something he was proud of," Lani states. "This is why he retired young—he wanted to retire at his peak, while he was doing his best work. He didn't want to just fade beyond the reputation he built."

Flores believes that the quality of Coching's work did much to develop the art of komiks in the Philippines. "From that point, vision and even his sense of history, it was his devotion to the craft that defined his greatness and inspired his contemporaries to aspire for excellence as well."

The book was recently launched alongside the exhibit "The Big Screen Years" at the National Museum. The exhibit runs until April 2010.

Daisy in bloom in fine memoir

By Ellen Cole

IN 1928, A YEAR AFTER we were married, Bert and I had daisy offspring in a single year: our eldest daughter Marjorie, the teenage Thomas Gould, and the movie "Sakay." One did not live for more than a year, while the others (live on and) on and on.

REVIEW

So writes Daisy Hontiveros Avellana in Chapter 1 of her just-released memoir, "The Drama of It: A Life in Film and Theater." That paragraph should live in other the remarkable life of the Avellana, the Queen of this day in the Philippines. While raising a family and surviving war, poverty, calamity and the tumult of years, Daisy and Landline also played a role in local film and theater, in some becoming both the local Artists with a starred body of work that remains unappreciated in Philippine art.

"The Drama of It" delves out their pioneering years together, her as the understated theater and screen the director "Sakay," the landmark 1939 film based on herding a more dramatic local classic, at only 23 years old; and she as muse and full creative partner to her husband (she wrote the story of "Sakay" and played dress) with Augustin's 75 Perpetual of the Actor as "Sakay" in the definitive adaptation used in the 1940s film and still staged today, while also starring as Joan in Lorraine, Lady Macbeth, Brides, Houdini, Emmanuelle, Brides de Alfa, Gaudin—the crown of female roles in themselves—an actor, in film and on the radio.

"Bert liked to say that on his wedding day he actually married two girls," recalls Avellana. "He described the first girl as a domestic goddess, dedicated to being a good housewife and devoted to being a good mother. The other lady he called his 'beaver girl' who read, plays, acted."

Instituto Cervantes republishes Spanish literary works of Filipino writers

Biblioteca Clásicos Hispánico-Filipinos resumes key literary works in Spanish by Filipinos who have won acclaim even in the Ibero-American world

THE DIVERSITY AND RICHNESS OF Philippine-Spanish literature evolved side by side with the country's history. This can best be appreciated in the case of the country's cultural institutions and the exceptional literature of its colonial and contemporary authors.

However, despite its interest, Filipino literature is somehow being partially overlooked with Spanish writings of Filipino authors becoming less and less available in bookstores and libraries.

In an effort to remedy this, Instituto Cervantes de Manila presents Biblioteca Clásicos Hispánico-Filipinos, a project aiming to promote the works of Filipino authors from the beginning of the 20th century to the 1970s, at Instituto Cervantes' Isabel de León.

Presided by the Embassy of Spain, this series of Clásicos Hispánico-Filipinos will include public rights titles selected by Hispanic literature scholars. The first title of this collection is "Cuentos de Juana" by Adilberto Gamboa Montenegro (1906-2011), which will also be launched this month.

"The author is an personal friend. As the author, I am both a writer and a translator and I remember the Philippines my home. I am glad to see some long-lost Filipino literature such as 'Cuentos de Juana' and making them available to all at our library," Instituto Cervantes director José Rodríguez says.

Gamboa, a native of La Carlota, Negros Occidental, was a Filipino officer and poet, whose significant body of work in the Spanish language is only now being recognized in the country.

His works included poems such as "El Hilo," "El Mio Primer," "El Perro de María Clara," "El Pueblo Alegre," "El Amor Eterno," "Una Señora" and "Un Hijo." "She also wrote a play entitled 'En el Maravilloso Sabor de Filipinas'."

"Cuentos de Juana," a collection of tales published in 1942 based on Gamboa's favorite stories of his young years

PUP strengthens international education with China

THE UNIVERSITY OF THE PHILIPPINES (UP) through its president Quins G. Guanco launched a full-scale campaign to becoming a high caliber institution in the field of international education.

To strengthen the university with other institutions in giving quality education, PUP entered an agreement with Beijing-based Kailashan Technology Ltd (KAT), a recognized agency in the People's Republic of China, to promote the university.

Under the agreement which was signed recently by PUP president Dr. Ernesto Guanco and his Vice President, Dr. Ernesto Guanco, the KAT will be the sole partner of PUP in facilitating Chinese students to study in the Philippines.

The agreement is to promote the different programs of PUP in the universities in China. The institutions will also create up-to-date information plan for faculty members, staff, administrative staff and personnel involved in the programs. Activities such as travel grants, improvement of materials and equipment will be provided.

On the other hand, PUP will offer foreign students from Beijing to study in the Philippines. As part of the agreement, PUP will submit progress and feedback reports to KAT. The agreement is for a period of five years.

Witnesses of the signing of the agreement were PUP president Dr. Ernesto Guanco, Vice President Dr. Ernesto Guanco, and university president Dr. Quins G. Guanco. Also present in the signing were Vice President Dr. Ernesto Guanco, Vice President Dr. Ernesto Guanco, and Vice President Dr. Ernesto Guanco.
